

Court: Tahoe killer has no right to parole

By Cy Ryan, Las Vegas Sun

CARSON CITY – The Nevada Supreme Court has ruled that a Las Vegas man does not have a constitutional right to parole.

Michael Anselmo, now 57, was sentenced in 1972 to life in prison without the possibility of parole in the death of college student Trudy Hiler, who was stabbed 18 times. She and Anselmo both worked during the summer at a casino at North Lake Tahoe.
