

Nevada brothel to start servicing women

By Henry Breaun, Las Vegas Review-Journal

In as little as three weeks, the Shady Lady Ranch brothel plans to launch a live-action sociology experiment that could open a whole new market for the state's legal bordellos or destroy the industry altogether.

So go the predictions for what might be the biggest change to hit the brothel business since the credit-card reader: male prostitutes.

By as early as mid-January, Shady Lady owner Bobbi Davis plans to hire two men to start servicing women at her cathouse 150 miles northwest of Las Vegas.
