

Rubicon Trail users get a lesson in cleaning up waste

By Carlos Alcalá, Sacramento Bee

Rarely does a humble county road become a legend.

That, however, is the status of the El Dorado County route known as the Rubicon Trail.

Though it is more a collection of granite obstacles than a road as that word is generally understood, the Rubicon is a mecca for those who drive off-highway vehicles.

“We get people from all over the world,” said Vickie Sanders, who coordinates Rubicon programs for the county.
