

SATELite Festival coming to Squaw Valley

Squaw Valley is slated to host the first SATELite Festival this September. This year's SATELite Festival will unite adventurers, artists and consumers for film premiers, photo exhibits, cycling events, wine and dining experiences and live music.

The SATELite Festival comes to Squaw Valley Sept. 10-12

The weekend will include an array of activities including films and music, art and symposiums, and dinner and drinks all in support of conservation. The event is a community-based event celebrating the beauty of nature and the steps that all must take to preserve it. Participation in the festival is free, compliments of event sponsors and donors, and tickets to additional activities including dinners, concerts and symposiums will be all benefit SATELite's 2010 cause.

For more information about the SATELite Festival and their 2010 environmental cause and sponsors click here.