

Nevada approves bear hunting, including in Tahoe

By Keith Rogers, Las Vegas Review-Journal

The state Wildlife Commission voted Friday to establish Nevada's first bear hunting season in an emotional-packed meeting that drew opposition from animal rights activists.

The nine-member commission voted 7-1 with Commissioner Charles Howell casting the dissenting vote.

Chairman Scott Raine did not vote.

Read the whole story