

Tahoe investment group buys Denver firm

By John Rebchook, Denver Post

A Nevada-based investment group has purchased DRI, a Denver-based disaster restoration firm that late last year received a shout-out from Dr. Phil.

The price that Jenmar Investment Group, LLC of Lake Tahoe paid for DRI was not disclosed. DRI has completed more than $60 million in re-construction and restorations during the past 25 years.

“Jenmar could not be more pleased by the acquisition of DRI,” Jenmar spokesman Phillip Knowles, said in a statement released this week. “DRI is poised in the marketplace with the best infrastructure and technical expertise to become the dominant company in the Mountain West market. They make a great addition to the Jenmar portfolio.”
