

If standardized test scores went away at the K-12 level, how would you propose assessing student achievement as well as how teachers and administrators are doing?