

2 STHS students selected to attend NFL-Wharton workshop

South Tahoe High School juniors John Cefalu and Bailey David are two of 36 student-athletes to be chosen among approximately 2,000 applicants to be part of the NFL-Wharton Prep Leadership Program.

The program is a three-day workshop in June that provides top-notch high school athletes with leadership training and instruction from Wharton professors and NFL executives. The workshop at Wharton School will provide student-athletes with a crash course in business and personal finance, the role of financial advisers, and development of leadership skills.
