

Slain woman filed earlier restraining order

By KRNV-TV and MyNews4.com

A few dollars for alcohol may be the reason a South Lake Tahoe woman was murdered in front of her two-and-a-half-year-old son last week. Court documents obtained by News 4 mention that possible motive and the fact the victim predicted this terrible crime would happen years before.

Lyra Fisher Bomediano filed a request for a restraining order against the police suspect in her murder – her husband – in court in 2007 writing quote: “he strangled me by putting his both hands on my neck real tight, I can’t breathe and almost died.”

Lyra wrote their main reason for fighting was financial and especially when she’d refuse to give him money for alcohol. She went on to say quote: “he will seriously hurt me and end up taking my life.”
