

Caltrans adopts statewide bike-pedestrian plan

By Alexa Renee, KXTV

California is officially moving toward an active transportation system.

Caltrans announced Tuesday the decision to adopt the first statewide bicycle and pedestrian plan, Toward an Active California.

The Golden State has seen a double increase in active transportation over the last decade, according to Caltrans.

Now the state is working to further encourage Californians to hop on a bike or put on their walking shoes to get around on a daily basis.
