

Nev., N.J. pokers players can play online against each other

By Richard N. Velotta, Las Vegas Review-Journal

Online pokers players may have hit the equivalent of a royal flush Tuesday.

Caesars Interactive Entertainment, a subsidiary of Caesars Entertainment Corp. and the owner of wsop.com – the online outlet of the World Series of Poker – on Tuesday introduced its first competition between residents of Nevada and New Jersey.

The move follows Monday's decision by regulators in Nevada and New Jersey to allow the pooling of players in those states to compete with each other in online poker games.
