

Several Nevada candidates have criminal records

By Ramona Giwargis, Las Vegas Review-Journal

One candidate has been charged with theft and wiretapping. Another was convicted of domestic battery and accused of waving a gun while drunk. One was an Army deserter.

These are a few of the political candidates on the Nevada ballot this year – and it's causing deep concern in some political circles.

Nevada voters have many choices at the ballot box, including electing a new governor.
