Laurence Alvarez-Roos, a worldwide river runner and explorer, will present his experiences rafting, since 1986, the world's most iconic rivers from Africa's Zambezi to the Colorado River to Bio-Bio and Futaleufu to South America. Learn how the thrill of riding whitewater must also compete with the need for electrical power. . . dams built on these rivers have changed them forever. Laurence will discuss the alternate demands on these great rivers and various adaptations that have been made.
